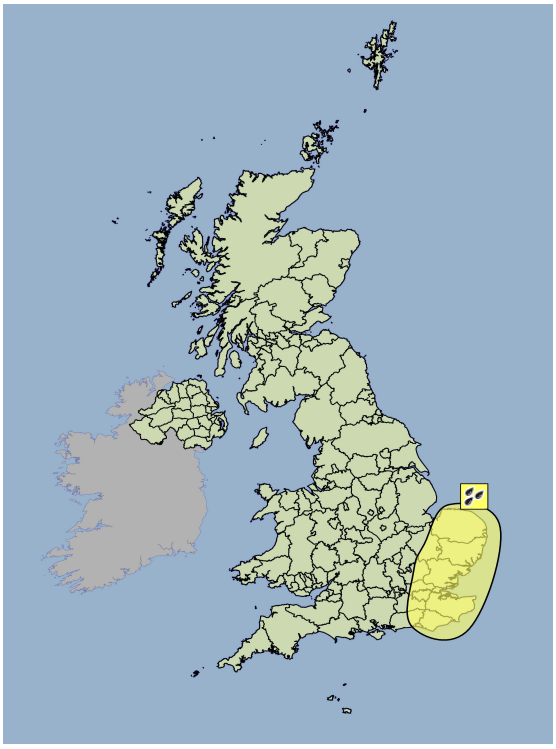
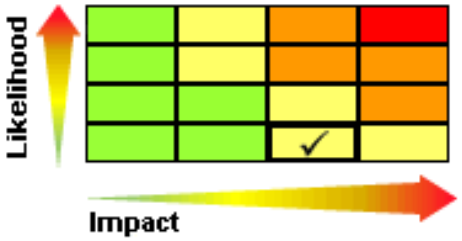
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
The cloud is expected to break to allow some sunshine this afternoon and as temperatures reach the low 20's Celsius, there is a risk that isolated thunderstorms will develop. Where thunderstorms do occur, 20-25 mm of rain could fall within an hour.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 12:00 on Fri, 14th Aug 2015 until 20:00 on Fri, 14th Aug 2015

Although many places will be dry, there is a risk of isolated thunderstorms breaking out across parts of east and southeast England this afternoon and early evening.

Be aware of the risk of very localised surface water flooding.
